5. Use of Cookies and Other Site Tracking Data

Cookies: A "cookie" is a small file that we may save on your computer's hard drive that contains non-personal information. These cookies help to give you faster access to pages you have already visited. They also allow you to customize your pages and optimize your experience at our sites. We may also use cookies to help us figure out how many people visit our sites, which of our web pages they visit, and how long they stay there. This information helps us figure out which of our web features are highly successful and which sites might need improvement. You can disable cookies on your computer by indicating this in the preferences or options menus in your browser. Most browsers accept cookies automatically, but allow you to disable them. Disabling cookies may prevent you from properly using the Services or accessing the site.

In order to administer and optimize our sites for you and to diagnose problems with our sites, we use your IP address to help identify you and to gather demographic information about you.

Banner Ads: The Services may include the use of ad banner partners for the serving or targeting of ads, promotions, and other marketing messages. These ads may be provided, in some cases, by a third party ad service provider. The ad service provider may place or utilize their own unique cookie on your browser, and may use non-personally identifiable information about your visit to our sites, such as the number of times you have viewed the ad. SHOWoff is not responsible for the collection of these cookies and is not responsible for the actions of the ad service providers. SHOWoff does not sponsor, endorse or guarantee any products or services advertised by third parties on its site.

Ad service provider companies may use information (not including your name, address, email address or telephone number) about your visits to this and other web sites in order to provide advertisements about goods and services of interest to you.
